RESEARCH METHOD

25+ Swiss and international competitor and reference sites, each reviewed across six axes: positioning · site structure · storytelling · credibility · UX / conversion · visual direction.

A strong brand, a still-empty shell, and an angle nobody owns.

Your current site is visually polished but proves nothing: no projects, no figures, no testimonials, and above all no story of the chain that links the architect to the sales partner. That is exactly where your uniqueness lies, and no competitor tells it well.

white space. Nobody pulls off both the architectural narrative and the sales conversion machine.

Pre-sale readiness

Early commercialisation helps secure construction financing. The level expected depends on the bank, project and equity position.

pages in the recommended architecture (8 fixed + 2 CMS templates), short but dense with proof.

The finding in one sentence. ZweiFach presents two juxtaposed services (Architektur / Vermarktung) where the value lies in their continuity. The site must stop being a statement of intent and become a site of proof, organised around one logic: design a bankable project and produce the pre-sales that help secure its financing.

The chosen direction. A short, embodied site (the named duo, like the best founder-led brands), fed by a projects CMS and proven conversion mechanics, unit tables, fact counters, differentiated journeys. We combine what competitors never bring together: the narrative and the sale.

02 - CURRENT SITE DIAGNOSIS

zwei-fach.ch: a pretty skeleton.

Today the site comes down to three pages (Home, Architektur, Vermarktung) and a fair tagline. The aesthetic is there, the substance is missing. Here is the read across the 6 evaluation axes.

WHAT ALREADY WORKS

- A memorable brand concept: “ZweiFach” = the double view, the two partners, the two trades.
- The embodied duo, with portraits and roles, an asset the big groups don't have.
- Two clear doors and a promise of support “from the first idea to the closing.”
- A premium visual level (Webflow, beautiful photography): the container is good.
- Technical transparency (reference to SIA phases): real professional credibility.

WHAT IS MISSING, THE REAL GAPS

- No proof: no projects, no figures, no testimonials, no partners.
- No chain: the two trades are silos. The story 'architect designs → bank requires a quota → partner pre-sells' is absent.
- No explicit target: the developer / investor doesn't recognise themselves, the message stays generic.
- A single generic CTA: no journey differentiated by visitor intent.
- Under-filled structure: too few pages to carry B2B credibility.

03 - POSITIONING: THE VALUE CHAIN

The uniqueness isn't “architecture + sales”. It's the continuity.

Your typical client is the real-estate project developer (developer, landowner, investor). Their real journey is a chain, and ZweiFach covers the two links that matter most, around a key moment nobody stages.

Bank requires >40% of units pre-sold

Financing risk reduced through early commercialisation

Pre-sales and reservations can play an important role in reducing financing risk for real-estate developments. The exact threshold depends on the bank, the project size, the developer's equity position, whether the land is already owned, and the overall risk profile. In many cases, a meaningful level of pre-commercialisation is expected before construction financing is fully secured or released. This is the link ZweiFach addresses: design a bankable project and support the early commercialisation that helps secure it.

CloudOnPoint = ecosystem partner, not a third associate. The 3D visuals, the project website, the logo and the brochures used to pre-sell are produced by CloudOnPoint. Present it as an ecosystem partner (a “Method” section), alongside the construction-management (Bauleitung) partner, strengthening credibility without diluting the duo.

How the others position, and where the gap is.

Each player was assessed across the 6 axes. Arta sells remarkably but tells little of the architecture, Gigon/Guyer tells the story but doesn't sell, Amini is splendid but empty of transactional content. Nobody does both. (Scale: ●●●● strong → ●○○○○ weak.)

PLAYER	POS.	STRUCT.	STORY	CRED.	CONV.	VIS.	WHAT TO BORROW
ZweiFach today	●●●○○	●●○○○	●●○○○	●○○○○	●○○○○	●●●○○	Starting point: strong brand, empty shell to fill with proof.
Arta SA French-speaking CH	●●●●●	●●●○○	●●●○○	●●●●●	●●●●●	●●●○○	Unit tables, fact counters, named agent, "I have a plot" CTA.
BECK Real Estate Central CH	●●●●●	●●●○○	●●●○○	●●●○○	●●●○○	●●●○○	The message: "we realise values, not just objects."
Amini Group Zürich	●●●○○	●●●○○	●●○○○	●●●○○	●●○○○	●●●●●	Premium video hero, cinemagraph, lots of white space.
Halter AG Zürich	●●●○○	●●●○○	●●●○○	●●●●●	●●●○○	●●●○○	Proof the market values integrated trades (idea→handover).

The map that sums it all up

Cross two dimensions, the strength of the architectural narrative and the power of the sales machine, and the top-right quadrant is empty. That is the territory to claim.

What each reference teaches us.

Rather than copy one site, we assemble the best of each: Arta's sales machine, BECK's message, Gigon/Guyer's narrative, Kasha's duo structure.

Arta SA, arta.ch

The living demonstration of the model (family firm since 1976). Fact counters read off the site (1,312 units · 564 buildings · CHF 743M sales), per-project unit tables with “Sold” status, named agent, “I have a plot” CTA. Borrow: fact counters, unit table with status, named agent, intent CTAs.

BECK Real Estate, beck-realestate.ch

The closest message match, same trades (sales + architecture + valuation). In-house architecture assesses buildable potential before the sale, architecture as a value lever. Borrow: the ‘realise values’ message and architecture feeding the sale.

Amini Group, aminigroup.ch

The most visually premium: video hero, cinemagraphs, white space, in-house architecture arm, portfolio filterable by status, pre-marketing logic. Borrow: portfolio filtered by status, pre-sale logic, light video hero.

Gigon / Guyer, gigon-guyer.ch

Every project documented with a conceptual narrative, named team, credited engineers, competition prizes, performance. Credibility through won competitions. Borrow: the narrative project page, rationale, named roles, awards.

Kasha Paris, kasha.paris

Founder brands, bencaballero.com · joshflagg.com · maarcstudio.com

Small but expert: proof by numbers and the author's posture. A ‘Marketing’ page detailing how the sale is run, a short embodied IA. Borrow: a ‘Method’ page on how Dionis pre-sells + proof by numbers.

Position ZweiFach as a premium agency, not two freelancers.

You are two people, and that's a strength: closeness, embodiment, a single point of contact. But the site must signal an integrated, premium structure, the short embodied form of the best founder brands makes that possible without ever looking 'small'.

THE POSITIONING STATEMENT

For developers, landowners and investors, ZweiFach is the duo that covers a single continuous value chain, from feasibility study to the last unit sold, because design and marketing are thought through together, not subcontracted separately.

The duo message. Two named people, two areas of expertise, one continuity. 'ZweiFach: design the project and sell it.'

The target message. We talk bankability, pre-sale quota, risk and yield, not 'dream home'. The developer must recognise themselves from the first line.

The premium signal. Quantified proof, precise roles, a named partner ecosystem, a sober controlled visual direction. Rigour, not flash.

THE FOUR LEVERS THAT SAY 'AGENCY', NOT 'FREELANCERS'

- A named method, the value chain presented as a proprietary process, with your own vocabulary (the 'bank pre-sale moment').
- Structured proof, a CMS of projects, fact counters, chained case studies showing each partner's exact role.
- An owned ecosystem, partners for 3D, brochures, construction management: you orchestrate a supply chain, not isolated.
- Premium execution, typography, photography, differentiated journeys: the finish of an established brand, from launch.

The pages, and why each one exists.

A short but dense structure: 8 fixed pages + 2 dynamic templates (CMS) that multiply with content. Every page serves the demonstration of the chain.

MAIN PAGES

Home	The integrated-chain promise, the duo, the developer target, key figures, 2–3 flagship projects.
About	The two partners: background, expertise, complementarity. Embodies the brand and builds trust.
Contact	Target of the 'Talk about your project' buttons, journeys differentiated by intent, not one form.
Architecture	Esad's trade: feasibility, risk analysis, plans, design. Fed by case studies filtered to architecture.
Commercialization	Dionis's trade, in three parts (below). The transactional heart of the site.
Our Work	The filterable index of all projects (Architecture / Commercial). The proof, in one place.
Privacy Policy	Legal page, compliance and professionalism.
Terms & Conditions	Legal page, contractual framing and credibility.

DYNAMIC TEMPLATES, CMS (ONE PAGE TO DESIGN, THAT MULTIPLIES)

Case study (detail)	Project-page template, context → rationale → named roles → figures → visuals. Min. 4 at launch. Feeds Architecture and Our Work.
Apartment for sale	Listing template: address, info, contact form, direct call. Variable number depending on the market.

THE COMMERCIALIZATION PAGE, THREE PARTS

BUY Apartments currently available (grid). One click → the detailed listing with contact and call.	SELL For owners who want to entrust their building for sale, Dionis's priority target. Section + quote form.	FINANCING Help obtaining bank financing, the 'bank quota' link of the chain, made concrete and actionable.
--	--	--

CMS COLLECTIONS

- Work / Case studies, a single collection with a discipline field (Architecture / Commercial) for filtering, feeds Our Work and Architecture, no duplication.
- Properties for sale, the available apartments: the 'Buy' grid and each detailed listing (address, rooms, area, status, visuals, contact).

Once published, the site will have at least ~12 pages (8 fixed + min. 4 case studies) plus the variable number of properties for sale. Launches in one language, ready to localise in stages.

Precise references, not vague inspirations.

For each content type, an existing page serves as a proven template, the library of models the design will build on.

- Burckhardt, 'Reinach Music School', context → rationale → named roles → figures (cost, m³, rooms) → materials. For a design-heavy project.
- Gigon / Guyer, 'Greencity', mixed-use narrative → team + engineers → 1st-prize status → environmental performance.
- MVRDV, 'Valley', urban narrative → quantified programme → stakeholders → designer quote. For a large case study.
- Snøhetta, 'Ring and Greenhouse', short prose + metadata band (Typologies / Status / Client). For the tighter format.
- Norm Architects, 'Shoreline Studio', short sensory premium narrative. A tone reference for project pages.
- Walde, 'Erfolgsgeschichten', global figures + segmented named testimonials. For the sales-proof page.
- Naef, micro-site + E-Promotion, per-development micro-site + unit status / statistics. For the future 'Premium' tier.
- Kasha Paris, 'Before / After', visual transformation proof, land/study → plans → building built and sold.
- Arta SA, unit table, unit table with status, '% sold' banner, named agent, PDF brochure, distances / POI.

ASSUMPTIONS TO CONFIRM

A few points to confirm together before design.

Before moving into UX/UI design, a few strategic assumptions should be confirmed with ZweiFach. This is a normal professional step, it makes sure the site is built on facts rather than placeholders.

- The real project references available for the website.
- Real sales or commercialisation figures.
- Current or upcoming apartments / properties for sale.
- Testimonials or partner references.
- The exact financing and pre-sale claims you are comfortable making.
- The legal pages needed: privacy policy, terms, and impressum if required.

The inputs that turn this strategy into a build.

To move efficiently into the design (Figma) phase, the following inputs from ZweiFach will be needed:

- The final list of pages to include.
- Project images, plans, renderings or documents.
- The information for each case study.
- Available property data, if the Buy section is included.
- Photos and short bios of both partners.
- Brand assets (logo, fonts, colours).
- Partner names and logos, if they should be shown.
- The preferred launch language and any legal requirements.

10 - RECOMMENDATIONS & NEXT STEPS

The action plan, in priority order.

The priority isn't aesthetic, the container is already good. It's about proof: produce the evidence, then stage it in the recommended structure.

- 1. Adopt the recommended structure (8 pages + 2 CMS). A short embodied model fed by a projects CMS. Don't aim for 15 pages while projects are thin, scale up in stages.
- 2. Make the value chain the backbone. The 'bank pre-sale moment' becomes the climax of the message, from the Home and across Architecture / Commercialization (Financing).
- 3. Produce the first chained case studies as a priority. Show each partner's exact role and the full chain (feasibility → plans → quota met → units sold). Deliverable #1.
- 4. Install intent-differentiated CTAs. 'I have a plot', 'a project to structure', 'preparing the pre-sale', 'see our work', replacing the single form.
- 5. Add figures and testimonials from launch. Fact counters (even modest) and named testimonials, in the manner of Arta and Walde.
- 6. Own the partner ecosystem. CloudOnPoint and the Bauleitung partner presented explicitly, agency stature without diluting the duo.

Analysis based on a real-world audit of 25+ competitor and reference sites (Swiss and international), conducted in June 2026 across 6 axes: positioning, structure, storytelling, credibility, UX/conversion, visual direction. Market figures (bank quota, third-party fact counters) are orders of magnitude, to be confirmed case by case. Prepared for ZweiFach GmbH · Confidential.
